Directions for working the models of Plate XIV

Two pincushions

(See figures 38, 48, 64 and 68 as well as the patterns of plates V and XIV.)

Begin with making the laces after the models shown above. Insert the laces into an écru cambric. The pincushions made of linen and stuffed with horsehair are enclosed in a pink silk case edged with pink cord.

Sachets for handkerchiefs and gloves

(See figures 31, 41, 61 and 63, also the patterns of plates II, XIV and XV.)

Begin with the laces, which are to be made after the patterns indicated above. Introduce the lace into white cambric. The handkerchief sachet is made of pale blue satin, edged with silk cord and tied with ribbons.

The glove sachet is made of old gold satin and trimmed outside with cord of the same colour. A yellow ribbon is passed round the middle of the glove sachet on the satin of the foundation and under the little squares of lace; this ribbon serves to fasten the sachet.

Two reticules

(See figures 39 and 58, also the patterns of plates VI and XIV.)

Begin with making the laces after the patterns indicated above. Introduce the laces into écru silk. Line the reticules with violet or red stuff and fasten with a ribbon to match, drawn through a runner at the top.

Directions for working the models of Plate XV

Two aprons

(See figures 67 and 74, also the patterns of plates VIII and X.)

Begin with making the laces after the patterns indicated above. Introduce the laces into écru linen. They are edged with a row of little overcast bars.

The aprons, gathered at the top are tied with beige ribbon.

Linen waistcoat for ladies' dresses

(See figures 26 and 62, also the patterns of plates I and XV.)

Begin with making the laces after the patterns indicated above. Introduce the square motives into white linen ; the collar of the waistcoat is made of linen on which the lace is applied.

The waistcoat is lined with coloured silk which shows up the lace squares.
